

Dear Sir

So Wayne Minnaar doesn't believe the results of the LeadSA survey on bribery of the traffic police. I can't believe it either but probably not for the same reasons.

I can't believe that so many people would admit to breaking the law. 1889 people confessed to paying a bribe. In some cases even taking the ticket would have been the cheaper option.

What is the matter with the public? When did Joburgers become so irrational? There is only one way not to get a traffic fine and that is to obey the law of the road. That's it. There is no magic wand that will make JMPD disappear. Or other road users for that matter.

As a matter of fact if everyone started obeying the law properly we could probably make JMPD redundant, and we could force Wayne Minnaar to disbelieve his eyes again.

Yours sincerely,
